

In my presentation, I detailed the data required to understand the factors influencing your salary. By analyzing variables such as age, gender, education, industry, and industry experience, I employed statistical methods to determine their impact on salary. The findings indicated that both education level and industry experience have comparable effects on salary. In essence, individuals with extensive experience and higher education tend to earn significantly higher salaries.